

Life Planning: Understanding legal documents that can help you take care of yourself and your family

A cancer diagnosis can often present a person with several legal challenges.

- What documents can allow me to identify others to help me care for my children?
- What can I put in place to be sure, if something happens to me, that my property and possessions can be distributed to those I want to receive them?

Join Wayne State's Legal Advocacy for People with Cancer Clinic (LAPC) as we discuss valuable information individuals diagnosed with cancer will want to consider as they move through their diagnosis, treatment, and beyond. LAPC is a medical-legal partnership between Wayne State University Law School and Karmanos that offers free legal services to eligible Karmanos patients and legal education to the Karmanos community.
